Marion and his Men—McDonald's Rescue.

BY H. G. CHAPMAN.

The heavy tread of a horse echoed upon the air, as a solitary horseman rode along the banks of the Santee river, and took his way in the direction of the farm house of Ellerslie Hunter. He was about twenty-five years of age, and was dressed in the uniform of Marion's men. He rode a tall coal black steed, and was completely armed for offensive or defensive operations.

He had evidently been belated, and was now wishing to make up for lost time, for his noble steed was urging forward at a rapid gallop, and his eyes wandered anxiously and warily around him; suddenly a bright light broke the forest and far down the stream he saw the lurid sparks ascending into the air, and behind a red glow painted upon the cloud, by the conflagration below. Hastily raising in his stirrups, he gazed for an instant upon the scene, and then exclaimed: "My God! it is the house of Hunter! Away! Away!"

He stuck his spurs deep into the side of his horse, who giving a wild snort, sped like an arrow from a powerful bow through the wilds of the forest.

The red flames of the fire cast an unearthly glare upon the surrounding objects, and revealed with fearful distinctness the features of a strong man who had emerged from the depth of the wood and stood leaning upon the rifle, gazed at the glowing embers. His lips quivered with emotion, and a tear started involuntarily to his eyes—but brushing aside this evidence of his weakness, if weakness it may be called, he strode to where the form of a female lay stretched upon the earth, and stooping down he scrutinized with one deep, long glance, those pallid features and parted the matted locks from her gory brow, where the fatal missile had forced its entrance and deprived her of life; and then raising himself to his fullest height, he grasped his rifle with a spasmodic clutch, and breathed forth in tones the single word—"Vengeance!"

Turning around, was about to shoot, as the sound of placable too.

The rush of the steed

and the underwood parted in twain, and with a bound a horseman bolted in front of the burning mansion, and glanced, with an unearthly stare around him.

It was McDonald! the affianced of Marion Hunter!

His lofty brow was pallid as that of the dead female that lay beneath his horse's hoof, and cheek as pale as the whiter rose of Sharon, while every limb of the strong man trembled like an aspen leaf, and his bosom heaved almost to bursting with the force of his emotion, as he shouted forth in the agony of his heart—

"My Marion! my Marion! where art thou?"

"Go seek the enemy of our land, that human demon of Tarleton's Captain Ellerslie, and you will find her whom thou seekest," and the hunter strode to his side.

"Earlie, my friend, how long since this deed happened?"

"An hour since."

"Then, by the souls of my forefathers, she shall yet be mine!" and turning his steed, he dashed rapidly from the spot followed by the hunter, after taking one lingering look at the scene of ruin left behind him.

The beam of the morning sun gilded the tree tops and glanced rapidly from hill to hill, as Captain Ellerslie and his party issued from the black forest, and entered upon the more open country around it. In the centre of the group rode the prisoners, and the eye of the officer often rested with gloating admiration upon the fair features of the defenceless Marion, as she silently and with downcast eyes rode along with a sturdy trooper upon each side, to prevent any sudden resolution she might form to escape. The live long night the party had travelled on with unwearied vigilance, and now that the terror of the forests, known as the haunt of Marion and his men, were passed, the Captain resolved to halt to procure some refreshments, and from the ardent glances he had so often cast upon her, Marion was led to believe he meditated some act of violence, towards her, and secretly resolved, if an opportunity presented, to escape.

The party halted before the gate of a large tory farm house, and one of the men dismounted—threw it open, and the cavalcade entered the enclosure one after another; the space not being wide enough to admit of more than one going at a time. Their long ride had so wearied the men that they hurried in as fast as possible; and by checking the impetuosity of her horse, Marion remained outside until all but two guards had passed in. One of these then advanced before her, bidding the other to remain behind her, but as he left her side, quick as thought she turned the head of her steed, and applying her whip to the flanks of the spirited animal, he sprang off in the direction of the black forest. A deep curse broke from the lips of the remaining guard as he wheeled his steed to follow her, and it drew the attention of those inside, among whom was Ellerslie.

"Mount men, and follow her! a thousand dollars to the one who secures her alive!" he shouted in phrensy tones of madness as he hastily mounted his own steed to pursue.

"Go on Marion! God bless you for a noble girl! And I'll defy the villains to find you again. On, on, girl! There is hope before, and worse than death behind." and the tears of heartfelt joy poured over the cheek of Hunter, as he gazed upon the exciting scene.

"Take that old gray headed dog to the first tree, and hang him upon the first limb!" wrathfully cried Ellerslie, as he spurred his horse through the gate, and urged him forward in quick pursuit.

Half a dozen men sprang forward to obey, and the old man was released from his horse, but so long had his limbs been confined in one position, that he was unable to walk, and his captors brutally seized him by the grey hairs of his head, dragged him forward to an oak tree which grew in the yard, and procuring a rope, prepared to carry into execution the last diabolical order of the blood thirsty Ellerslie.

In the meantime the steed which bore the flying Marion, swept rapidly forward, and and releasing the form of Marion, he sprang to his horse; but when rose in his stirrups, his head was close to his chin by the reins of Marion's palfrey, he turned him toward the farm house, and galloped hastily onward.

"Do not go there—a hundred red dragons are resting in the yard."

"Their doom is sealed—listen!" and as he spoke a loud volley rang forth upon the blast and the thick volumes of smoke curled up above the roof of the house, and a loud crash of arms resounded through the yard. Marion fixed an enquiring glance upon her lover who replied by simply saying—

"Is Marion and his men?"

"Of the hundred men that went forth with Ellerslie, not one escaped; and from the terror with which their fate inspired the Tories, the battle of that morning was called by them, 'McDonald's Rescue.'"

How a Coat was Identified.

In the Justice's Court in this city, a case was recently decided in a most novel way. A coat was in dispute, and the evidence was direct and positive for both claimants; the parties were Irish and "full of grit," ready to spend all they had rather than "give up beat." The affair had been carefully examined, and the Court was "in a quandary," not knowing who had the best claim on the garment. However, a moment before his Honor was to sun up the evidence, Patrick Power, one of the claimants, made the following proposition for settling the affair. Said Patrick:

"Timothy Slaguffe, now I say that coat belongs to myself entirely. I say it is mine own. Now mind ye, Timothy, the both of us will take the coat, 'n' look it all over; the man that finds his name on it shall be the owner."

"Done," said Timothy.

"An' I'll stick to the bargain," asked Patrick.

"To be sure," answered Timothy, and "yes," rejoined counsel on both sides.

"Thin look at it," said Patrick, as he passed the coat into the hand of Timothy.

Now it us sa if ye can find the name in yer own name, ye get it."

"I'll stick to the garment," said Patrick eagerly grasping the coat.

"Upon the honor iv a mon," was Timothy's reply.

"Then howd on a bit," said Patrick, as he drew the knife and opened a corner in the collar of his coat, taking therefrom two very small peats, exclaiming as he held them out in his hand.

"There, ye see that?"

"Yes; but what iv that," said Timothy.

"A devil a dale it has to do wid it; it is me name to be sure—peat, for Patrick, and peat, for Power, be jabsers!"

He got the coat—his did.

The Coxcomb.—Park Benjamin, Esq., in a lecture delivered recently in Newark, N. Y., drew the following picture of a coxcomb:

Talk of the vanity of women! Is there no vanity in man? Show me one, girl with her pretty head stuffed full of conceit of her own beauty and consequence, and I will show you fifty youths upon whose lips the small down, by much coaxing has ventured to appear, and a hundred dissolute dandies, exulting in a full facial crop of spontaneous growth, who are more perfectly possessed with a self satisfied estimation of their own irresistible charms than any miss in her teens. Each of these apologies of men fancies every woman whom he happens to encounter, desperately enamored of him, and is fully persuaded in his own mind that he bears to the fair sex the same relation which the late Capt. Martin Scott did to the racoon. "Don't fire," said a coon to the Captain, as the latter was about raising his unerring rifle, "I will come down." "Don't pop the question," says some fascinated dunsel to one of these exquisite lady-killers, "I will marry you." All these conquerors of the fair, these Cesars in their own esteem, have to do, is to come and see, and conquer.

Jenny Lind's Last Charities.—The late Jenny Lind gave $50 to the waiter and $30 to each of the other servants of the house where she was married. She then gave her land to Otto Goldschmidt, and this is the last of the Lind charities that will ever be recorded. The Jenny Goldschmidt charities have not yet commenced.

Death to the Tories! Marion I come!"

The countenance of Ellerslie paled as he heard the terrible sound, Successful Corn Planting.

Messrs. Editors:

From the Farmer and Planter.

While I was spending the past summer at Glenn Springs, I had the pleasure of the acquaintance of Col. Cran and Capt. Williams of Waterborough, who formed me that Mr. Eurrell Saunders, of the Parish had, by his skill and attention to agriculture, astonished the planters in that part of the State; they informed me that Mr. Saunders came to that neighborhood as an overseer from Barnwell district, and by industry and economy made a sufficiency to purchase some hands and a plantation. He was told by a respectable citizen that he could not succeed in planting, as the former owner of the plantation had failed to do so, and had to leave the place. Mr. Saunders commenced a system of manuring and rest, and soon convinced his neighbors that there was as much in the management of the man, as there is in the production of the land. His corn crop the first year or two, was from 15 to 20 bushels per acre. Afterwards it increased from 20 to 30, and in a few years he raised 40 bushels to the acre. This was doubted by some of the citizens of Waterborough, and a bet was made and the parties went down to Mr. Saunders' plantation and measured his crib, and it was ascertained that he had exceeded 40 bushels per acre. Shortly after I received this information from Col. Cran and Capt. Williams, Mr. Saunders arrived at the Springs, and I availed myself of the opportunity to make his acquaintance, and enquire particularly into his mode of culture. I found him a modest, unassuming gentleman, with good sound practical sense, and willing to communicate his plan of planting and cultivation of corn, which I will give in detail, but will state another fact related by the gentlemen named above, which will astonish many, viz: Mr. Saunders' present crop of corn is 100 bushels per acre.

main until they have sprouted and in the act of coming up. He then takes a turning-plow a size larger and runs round again, still taking only half slice and throwing the dirt as near the corn as possible and covering the seed, which prevents them from coming up. The corn remains in this condition eight or ten days longer and the bed is finished out by running two more furrows, and then a shovel furrow in the middle as deep as possible, which completes the plowing. He usually plants peas about the first of July, between the hills of corn with hoes, and works them after he pulls the fodder, with the hoe also. Mr. Saunders informed me that he was compelled this year to break the middle, as he found it would get too hard, but usually does not plow his corn but once, and scarcely ever hoes it. Mr. Saunders works 55 hands, large and small he cultivates 60 acres in corn and 30 acres in potatoes, he also plants 4 acres of long staple cotton to the hand, and some rice for market, and has sold 1200 bushels of corn the present year, and some bacon, and what is more astonishing to me, he only runs six plows, which I consider is one of the most important secrets for us to learn. He rests his cotton land every other year, his rows are 4-1/2 feet wide, and in the summer he hauls in leaves and lists them in only taking dirt from the edge to cover them, and then in the winter, lists in the weeds and vegetable matter and draws up with the hoe. His average crop is three bales of long staple cotton to the hand. I propose in a future number to make a few suggestions on Mr. Saunders' system, applicable to the up-country.

I am yours,

T. B. BYRD.

Greenwood, S. C., Oct. 15.

The cultivation of Corn.

The cultivation of Corn should be considered under two divisions—upland and low ground. Upland corn is planted in rows, and is very light and clean, or turned over, if stubble or fallow land, as in the last case in the winter possible. The object in the latter case, is to give time for the vegetable substance to rot, and the freezing of winter to disintegrate and pulverize the furrow slice or clods, if any there be, and further to destroy the cut worm, which is generally worse on stubble or fallow land. The land should be as deeply plowed as the depth of soil will admit, or its character indicate. Thus a stiff soil, or one that has a hard pan of clay beneath a good soil, should be penetrated as deeply as possible with a plow, so as not to turn up much of the subsoil. A perfect till should be secured, if possible, by plowing when the land is in proper order. No land should be plowed at any time when so wet it will not crumble after the plow, or so dry that it will even break up into clods.

Upland corn may be planted in this section from the first to the middle of March. Low ground, from the middle of March to the first of May. The distance of corn will depend upon the strength of the soil, number of stalks to the hill, if checked, and whether manured. A good general rule is, twelve to sixteen square feet to the stalk on upland. Low ground may be planted from nine to twelve square feet to the stalk. Manure should be put on with lister or bedding up, and covered to prevent loss by exposure to sun and rain—or covered in with the corn at planting for same reason. Upland, if bedded, should always be planted as low as possible, not to go below the soil, to enable it to bear drought. Corn may be covered on upland, if very light, with a board; but if stiff or inclined to bake, two furrows with a small scooter-plow are preferable to any method, as a small harrow can be run over the ridge covering the corn, which otherwise might never get through—Plenty of seed, from four to eight grains, should be put in, as it is easier to pull out five stalks than to replant one. It is better to transplant than to replant, for the latter never makes well among old corn, unless the replant is numerous. If the stand is very bad, it is better to plow up and plant over. Birds will injure a stand less when plenty of seed is used, and may be entirely baffled by tarring the seed. The rows should be laid off with a scooter, (both ways, if checked) followed one way by a large shovel to re-open planting furrow, the seed dropped and covered. If early planted, very lightly, say one inch, if with board or hoe, but three, if with scooter-plow, and scrape off when the sprout begins to push up.

It may be covered deeper, later in the season. The first plowing should be done when the corn has four leaves, or sooner if stunted by cold or growing slowly. Plow as deeply as possible next to the corn, with a small scooter or coultter, following with a large scooter and plowing out the row with a shovel as deeply as the soil will admit. The hoe hands should follow the plows as closely as possible, to thin if unmolested by cut worm; uncovers and draw the dirt well up around the stalks; The second plowing should follow in twenty days, and be a deep one, near the corn and throughout the row; next the corn with a large scooter or shovel, plowing out the row with a turning-plow to hill the corn well; the last furrow in each row should be run with a shovel so as not to tear up too much of the subsoil.—The third plowing should follow at the same interval with a turning-plow, but shallow near the corn, and a little deeper to the center, in which and exactly between the checks, if hill corn, the peas should be dropped and covered with a shovel shallow. Peas in drill corn should be in the first furrow next to the corn. The fourth plowing should be done at same interval, and always with sweeps to lay the corn by flat, and plow the peas. Low ground corn varies from upland only in greater depth of plowing in the preparation to insure perfect drainage in these colder and wetter soils. It should always be planted on a level, but as low down as possible not to get through the soil; plant after a large shovel with a small scooter furrows, and scrape off with a board or harrow, if baked, by heavy rain or wind. Corn should be kept perfectly clean until laid by, frequently stirred and constantly growing.

Anderson and Knoxville Railroad.

Col. W. Spencer Brown, chief engineer of the Greenville and Columbia Railroad, has been in this place yesterday, from a rapid reconnaissance of the contemplated Railroad route from Anderson, S. C., through Rabun Gap, to Knoxville and Chattanooga, Tennessee. Col. Brown had not time, upon his short visit, to make a very minute examination of the entire route, but returns satisfied of its entire practicability, at a very moderate cost, considering that it passes through a mountainous country.—He expresses the confident opinion, that a superior road may be built at cost of not exceeding $15,000 per mile for fifty miles, through the mountains, and $10,000 per mile for the balance of the line, say 90 or 100 miles to Knoxville. Col. Brown thinks that the most practicable direction for the line, will be to strike from Anderson due west, crossing Seneca river near Sloan's Ferry, and by the most practicable route to the valley of Tugaloo River—thence up the valley of said River, to the mouth of Dix Creek, following which stream for a short distance, a very pretty level ridge may be crossed to the War Woman's Creek, a few miles from Clayton, and up that Creek to Clayton, thence through the Rabun Gap, to the head waters of the little Tennessee and Hiwassee River, without difficulty. The distance from Anderson to Clayton, by this route is about 60 miles, and Col. Brown says truly, that it is in every point of view, the most important enterprise to South Carolina and the Southern States that ever enlisted public attention. Let Charleston begin to move—let the State move, and let the people everywhere go to work, to insure the early construction of this great and important thoroughfare.

Anderson Gazette.

A Mowing Machine.—The Pongikepsie (N. Y.) Eagle says, that a machine for mowing, manufactured in the western part of the State, has recently been introduced into Dutchess county, which will probably prove of great advantage to farmers. It is warranted to cut and spread an acre an hour of any kind of grass with a pair of horses on all lands free from obstructions, and do it as well as it can be done with a scythe by the best of mowers. The machine is simple in its construction, and can be managed by any boy capable of driving a pair of horses. It is highly recommended by a large number of farmers who have used it with success in the western and central part of the State.

PROPOSAL
To Lease the Penitentiary Invited.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
MONTGOMERY, February 13, 1852.

PURSUANT to the act of the Legislature of the 9th inst., "To provide for leasing the Penitentiary," SEALED PROPOSALS, addressed to the Governor at the seat of Government, for the lease of the Penitentiary for six years, to commence on the 10th April next, will be received until the 20th March.

The Proposals must state the amount proposed to be paid for each year—also the names of the persons whom the applicant will offer as his sureties for the payment of the rent, and for the faithful performance of his duties.

On the 20th March or as soon thereafter as may be, the proposals will be opened by the Governor, and the proposal of the highest, or such other bidder as the Governor in the exercise of his best judgment may select, will be accepted.

No proposal will be received which does not offer to take the labor of the convicts as a full consideration for the lease, without any payment to be made by the State.

The lessee will be required to give two bonds, each with unquestionable sureties—the one in double the amount of the rent agreed to be paid, the other in the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars, conditioned that the lessee will faithfully perform all duties devolved upon him. The sureties must be freeholders resident within the State.

No applicant will be accepted as lessee who is not a man of sobriety and unquestionable probity, of kind, benevolent and conciliatory disposition, of good judgment combined with industry and good business habits and qualifications.

Persons desiring to make proposals are referred to the act which prescribes the duties and obligations of the lessee.

H. W. COLLIER,
Huntsville Democrat, Jacksonville Observer, Franklin Democrat, and State Guard, will please copy in their weekly paper until 20th March.

POETRY.

The following lively song, by Oliver Wynne, was sung at the Norfolk, Mass., Agricultural Society's Dinner, at Dedham, on the 24th of Sept., the whole company joining in the chorus:

The Primitive Agriculturist.

Tune.—The Poachers.
I'll give you a truthful history,
I leached from ancient lore,
'Tis all about Adam and Eve, my friends,
You've heard of 'em likely before;
They were people of ancient family
As far as 'tis known to me,
And around this table are gathered the shoots.
Of the old ancestral tree!
Chorus.
Oh! there are days of delight, whether cloudy or bright,
All seasons of the year!

When Adam waked up in the garden
With a ticklish pain in his side,
He coked his elbow's a-kimbo,
And stared upon Eve in his pride—
Said he "tis a novel variety
Of fruit that may wither and waste,
It certainly pleasant to look at,
I'll try if it's pleasant to taste!"

So he kissed her cheek, and the roses
That were nothing but white till then,
Caught quickly the dazzling brilliancy
That raised the devil in men!
Away with the vaunted smile!
It should certainly be reversed,
'Twas the blush of a woman that crown'd
the rose

With his redolent tinting at first!
Twain an early association
With an agricultural tone,
For Adam was planted in Eden,
And Eve was the bone of his bone!
But like to some modern ladies
Permitted to govern the roast,
She finally lost him in Paradise
For an apple or two at most!

Now these primitive agriculturists
Knew nothing of plough or spade,
But beauty sprang up in the sunshine,
And plenty lay hid in the shade;
The course proved a genial blessing,
Their labor was never in vain,
And Eve had some 'Abel' assistance,
While Adam reposed on his 'Cain'!

CHEAP WASHING.
THE undersigned having received and agency from W. W.
Oslin, for the sale of the "Chinese Lustral Washing Fluid," respectfully informs the citizens of Benton and Cherokee Counties, that he is prepared to dispose of right to families on the most reasonable terms.
By the use of this Fluid the washing of an ordinary sized family can be done in three hours, without pounding or rubbing; and the materials will not cost more than one dollar for twelve months. It is equally beneficial for woollens, broaddoths, and every other description of clothing. The Fluid has been analyzed by two of the most eminent Chemists in the United States, and found to be not in the least degree injurious to the fabric upon which it is used. Rights to families will be disposed of at two dollars each.

Monday in Decr., A. D. 1851.
THIS day came Samuel Reed, administrator of the Estate of James C. Reed, deceased, late of said county; by his attorney, Grant Hewitt, and filed his petition in writing, praying the court to compel Amanda Lister, administratrix of the Estate of Theodore M. Lister, deceased, to convey to the said Samuel Reed, as administrator, as aforesaid, titles to the following lands, being in said county, to-wit:
the south east fraction of section eleven, township fifteen, range five, east, containing one hundred and thirty-three acres. The south west fraction of section eleven, township fifteen, range five, east, and the east half of the south east quarter of section ten, township fifteen, range five, east, all in the Tuscaloosa Land District; which lands the said Theodore M. Lister, did, in his life time bind himself by bond un-

MATTHEW J. TURNLEY, vs.
ROBERT C. RODGERS.

Defendant in Attachment, and Jas.
P. VANN, Garnishee.
Cause pending in the Circuit Court for Cherokee County, in the State of Alabama.
AT a term of said court, began on the 6th day of October, 1851, and on the 6th day of October, 1851, the following proceedings were had in the above entitled cause, to-wit: the said James P. Vann, Garnishee, filed his answer, stating among other things, that on the 7th day of April, 1851, he gave his promissory note to said defendant, Rodgers, for three hundred and eighty dollars, due three days after its date; and that before making answer, he was notified by one William Wood, of the county of Floyd, in the State of Georgia, that the said note was transferred to him, (said Wood).
It is thereupon ordered by the court that publication be made in the Jacksonville Republican, a newspaper published in the town of Jacksonville, in the county of Benton, in the State of Alabama, requiring the said Wood to be and appear before this court, at the next term thereof, to be held on the sec-
